WORKING FIELDS™

ABOUT

Working Fields is a Mission-Driven Staffing Agency that provides supports to people with barriers to employment while they are on assignment with one of our client companies. The predominant population we serve are people in recovery from a substance use disorder. We do serve anyone who has barriers to employment such as a criminal conviction(s) or work history gaps, or those who are simply unable to find the job that they desire. Each associate is placed with a Certified Recovery Coach if they identify as in recovery, or a life coach if they do not. Coaches provide referrals to needed and specific local social service agencies, general peer support, and they work with each associate to develop an individualized ongoing recovery support plan. It is our mission that the associates we place go on to their own direct hire relationship with the company that has gotten to know them through our program.

Together, Working Fields partners with employers to give our associates the opportunity for a second chance.
